Autoist Trying To Avoid
Children In Street Hits
Another Auto.
OTHER ACCIDENTS
DURING WEEK-END
Collision Near Eagleton's
Glens Hurts Driver
From Machine.

Fireworks caused an automobile accident in which a small boy was injured and two cars demolished, a collision which occurred at the intersection of the main highway and a side road near Eagleton's Glens Sunday, a Youngstown man was thrown out of his machine and his car badly wrecked. It is claimed that the two cars met after one of the drivers had miscalculated the distance for a turn into a side road. The wrecked car was towed into the Chalfant Motor Co. garage.

Blinded by the glare of approaching headlights after he had made a quick turn to avoid striking several small children who were shooting firecrackers in the middle of Roosevelt valley, at the intersection of the Georgetown rd. John Burke, South Lundy st., driving a small roadster, ran into an automobile coming east on the Salem-Alliance rd. Sunday night.

Burke's car was completely wrecked by the collision and his infant child was thrown clear of the car. Mrs. Burke was also thrown out but escaped injury. The child was taken to a neighboring house where it was found that it had been badly bruised and its face lacerated. A passing autoist conveyed the child to the Burke home where medical assistance was given.

Wrecked Saving Children
Burke stated after the accident that he had sounded his horn and had slowed down to avoid striking the children but that the children suddenly started to run back across the street in the direction Burke had turned. He claims that as he was turning along Roosevelt valley prior to the accident, small groups of children shooting the forbidden firecrackers ran in front of the machine and did not heed the warnings of the large numbers of machines that pass along the street at the busy hours.

As he neared the scene of the accident Burke slowed down and in an effort to miss hitting the children, he turned his car to the left and could not get back to the right of the road in time to avoid hitting the automobile.

As R. W. Campbell was driving along Columbia st., the axle of his car suddenly broke, his car swerving to the side of the street. Not much damage was done.

Another Youngstown man had his car badly wrecked Sunday night when the axle dropped to the street, throwing the machine against a telephone pole and smashing the front of the car.

Still Seized Here, Ferren Hears Cases

Raids Made By Ritchie And
Hannay On Etna Street
Saturday Afternoon.

State Prohibition officers Earl Ritchie and Frank Hannay Sunday swooped down on two alleged manufacturers of the forbidden bootleg beverage, confiscating a still and over 50 barrels of mash and lodging two men in the East Palestine jail.

At 10 p. m. the officers raided the home of George Stankovich, 85 Etna st., surprising Stankovich as he had just emptied the contents of four kegs on an ash heap but capturing a gallon of mash which Stankovich had not had an opportunity to dispose of.

After placing Stankovich under arrest the officers took him to Mayor Ferren's court at East Palestine and returned to the scene of action once more. At 8 p. m. they raided the home of John Rotz, 115 Etna st. An oil still that was being operated by Rotz's officers caused the house to be filled with smoke and the house and Rotz offered no resistance and was taken to East Palestine as his neighbor had been a few hours before.

Sunday morning Mayor Ferren heard the cases. Rotz pleaded guilty to illegal possession but said he could not pay a fine so he was placed in the East Palestine jail to think it over.

Stankovich pleaded not guilty to illegal possession and was released on bond for a trial later.

Mayor Ferren fined two East Liverpool men on charges of illegally possessing liquor. Harry Anderson pleaded guilty and was fined $500. He did not pay but left a new automobile for security. William Bailey paid a fine of $200 and costs.

Talks To Lodge Members At Patriotic Service In Methodist Church.

ENDORSES WORLD COURT PROPOSAL

Declares World Problems
Should Be Settled In Court Of Justice.

Patriotic organizations of the city were well represented at the patriotic service Sunday morning at the M. E. church, when the pastor, Dr. H. H. Scott, used as his sermon theme, "Reaping a Nation's Harvest." Other organizations represented were the Knights of Pythias and auxiliary and the Knights of Maccabees and auxiliary. The church was crowded for this service.

Special musical numbers which added interest to this service were: Vocal solo, J. William Wilson, anthem, "Victory," by the choir and two selections by the Wesleyan quartet.

Rev. Scott spoke on the responsibilities of citizenship. He asked the voters to get back of good men who would be willing to assume candidacy the coming election.

He also spoke of the need of establishing very much closer international relations and endorsed the world court, advocated by President Harding, and hoped for a future association or league of nations not as a super government but a scourge of and judication of differences between the nations.

The speaker called attention to the fact that Sunday was the 60th anniversary of the beginning of the battle of Gettysburg. It was really the one decisive battle that settled the differences between the north and the south.

"We have not recovered yet from the evil effect of settling our differences between belligerent parties in a military way," he said. "We settle personal difficulties in courts of justice and international difficulties should be settled in the same way."

SALEM PEOPLE BUY LISBON BUS LINE

New Organization Plans To Extend Service To East
Liverpool.

After a week's negotiations the Modern Transit Co., operating a bus line between Salem and Lisbon, was sold Saturday to a new company composed of certain Salem interests and employees of the Y. and O. R. Railroad Co.

The new owners are H. L. McCarthy, L. P. Metzger, E. I. Edwards and R. F. Miller, Salem, and A. A. Crawford of Leontina. The new organization took possession Sunday morning and will operate busses to Lisbon on the same schedule as in the past, eventually extending the service to East Liverpool.

The Modern Transit Co. was composed of the following persons: C. Y. Farmer, Oscar Lodge, Retta Lodge, Lawrence Lodge and Ona Farmer. They were the directors and stockholders who transferred their stock to the new company.

At the meeting of the new company the following were elected officers: H. L. McCarthy, president; R. F. Miller, secretary and treasurer; A. A. Crawford, vice president and general manager.

Rumor had been circulated throughout the county that the bus company had been purchased by the Y. and O. R. Co., but officials of that company stated Monday that the railroad had no interest in the bus company.

Intoxicated Driver Fined $10 By Mayor

if Nation Is Ever Degraded Blame Our Women, He Says

Knoxville, Tenn., July 2.—"If our nation is ever degraded, it will be because the women have degraded themselves and for no other reason. Every nation is just so strong and good as its women."

This was the remarkable warning of Rev. Dr. A. B. Bowers, pastor of the fashionable Broadway Baptist church, to his congregation last night.

Dr. Bowers took for his text, "The highest great man," he said, "and a woman, a noble way."

"When the devil comes to tempt a man, he comes to tempt a woman first."

About 30 persons were injured, some of them seriously. It is feared at least five will die. When the two cars fell into the ditch the first car turned completely over.

Y. & O. MEN ISSUE STRIKE THREAT

Interurban Trainmen's Demand For An Increase In Wages
Carries Strike Threat; Conference Being Held Monday
Afternoon To Consider Ultimatum.

BULLETIN

There will be no strike Tuesday. Trainmen and officials of the road in session this afternoon agreed to postpone action on both sides pending a meeting of the trainmen to further discuss demands and offers. Service on the road will be continued regularly.

Whether or not the trainmen of the Youngstown and Ohio River railroad will strike Tuesday will be decided at a meeting of employees' representatives and officials of the railroad Monday afternoon.

The employees Saturday issued an ultimatum to the railroad that a strike would be called immediately unless the following demands were met:

That the railroad increase the pay of all trainmen six cents an hour; that time and a half be allowed for all overtime, the overtime starting not later than 20 minutes after the regular runs had been finished; and that this increase in pay must date back to May 1, 1923.

The trainmen are now operating on a sliding scale and they claim the wages are not high enough for them to live comfortably. They also claim that the wage scale of other interurban trainmen in this vicinity is higher than the one under which they have been working.

Issuance of the ultimatum came as a complete surprise to the company officials, who have been negotiating a new wage scale with their employees for several weeks.

What the conference Monday afternoon will produce is problematical. It is reported that the company is willing to grant the wage increase, but that some problems occasioned by the other demands may have to be threshed out in conference.

Should the men go out on strike Tuesday, tying up traffic on the line between Salem and East Liverpool, the only service between cities in Columbiana county will be by bus.

HARDING ON LAST LAP OF HIS TRIP ACROSS CONTINENT

Scheduled To Make Speech
On Reclamation Policies In Spokane.

Enroute with President Harding to Spokane, July 2.—Refreshed by his rest in Yellowstone park—the only real rest he has had since leaving Washington—President Harding started today on the last lap of his leisurely journey across the continent.

Four more speeches will be made before the president sets sail for Alaska and he is looking forward to them with keen zest. He went into the mountains of the Yellowstone tired from ten days' incessant speechmaking and crowds, but he came out today wholly rested. The two days of quiet in the mountains gave him the time needed for reflection and recreation.

Mr. Harding is highly pleased with the results of his trip thus far, he told friends today. He has preached the gospel of contentment and middle of the road conservatism to the people of the west for ten days now, and he personally believes his utterances have not been without effect in allaying some of the general unrest that he has heard so much of in Washington since last November.

Surprised and Gratiified
In some respects the president has been surprised and gratified. He has heard in the White House so many tales of the "west swelling with unrest" that he was fully prepared for some heckling when he left Washington. But he has not been bothered in this respect. His audiences, for the most part, have listened to his prepared addresses with marked attention and interest.

The president's speeches were prepared with an eye to combatting this same unrest and each of them has contained an appeal, either directly or indirectly, for the public generally to disregard the extremists on both sides of the big problem.

The presidential special is due to arrive at Spokane this afternoon, where the president will make a speech tonight dealing with reclamation policies. The people of the northwest are vitally concerned with reclamation and Mr. Harding plans to handle the subject in considerable detail.

Topography of the Air.

Explorations of the air have revealed an astonishing definiteness of arrangement in its layers, although, of course, the details are continually changing. Ley, in England, has directed his studies of floating balloons to a solution of the question of the influence of the topography of the earth's surface on the state of the air above it. He finds, among other things, that the disturbances produced by hills and valleys are transmitted to an unexpectedly great elevation, affecting the lower and middle strata throughout. "A general effect noticed is that the velocity of the wind, or of a current of air, is increased over a hill and diminished over a valley. It is thought that similar observations, generally distributed, would provide a real topography of the air."

WHAT ABOUT VITAMINS?
I hope my readers will bear with me as I want to talk about food once more.

But who a scientist in endeavoring to find out why a great many people in certain districts were dying from a mysterious ailment is able to clear up the suffering and save the lives of the people, by adding one simple article to their food, you and I have got to sit up and take notice.

And what did he do?
He found that the people were eating polished rice. All he did was to feed them the polishes.

They were trying to live on a food that was efficient in life giving elements. When he tried to find out what this mysterious substance was that was part of the covering of the rice, he did not place it in any of the regular divisions of food. You remember they are (a) meats, or white of eggs, (b) vegetables and bread, (c) fat, as in butter, (d) salts, and (e) water.

It didn't seem to count for much as food and without it the rest of the rice was insufficient for the needs of the body.

It is found in milk, egg yolk, butter fat, the cereals and leaves of certain food plants. Without it in the food there is no normal growth and development of the individual. This is called "fat soluble A."

Another known substance found in milk and grains also essential to growth and development is called "water soluble B."

Another absolutely necessary thing, is the salts, found in milk and vegetables.

Now what's the use of knowing this? Simply that if you use a diet containing milk whole grains and vegetables along with other foods you need never worry about the so-called deficiency diseases.

There are a lot of vitamin foods advertised and here's no reason to question the statements made. They are likely quite true.

In fact these advertisements are of value to the thinking man, as they call attention to that vital thing, proper eating.

But a good all around diet as outlined above will take care of you all right.

Thou Shalt Not Kill

SINCE Moses published the Commandments men have indulged the practice of murder, just as they had indulged it before they received the law. The taking of human life probably is as common today as at any time in the history of civilization. Apparently life is no more sacred in the centers of civilized population than in the jungle depths of savagery.

Love and greed continue to be the chief compelling motives for the taking of life, even as they were the chief compelling motives when survival was a more vital problem than it is at present.

Unhappily for our national self-complacency, murder in the United States is more common than anywhere else among so-called civilized states. Life is cheap in our large cities. The gunman must be reckoned among our stable institutions. Martial complexes resulting in daily homicide constitute one of the characteristics of society. The frankly predatory criminal, with easy access to arms, goes about his business of robbery prepared and willing to kill. Neighbors quarrel over a dividing fence, or a marauding chicken, and death belches from ready and eager guns!

During the year 1922, in 28 American cities, with a total population of 20,921,000, according to a report recently published by a prominent insurance authority, 1,877 murders were committed, or 9 per 100,000.

It is affirmed by the homicide statisticians that the record since 1900 "reflects an attitude of lawlessness and indifference to human life without a parallel in history." And it should be remembered that all murders are not discovered or distinguished as such.

It is too easy in this country for criminals to secure arms and other agencies of death. It is a standing disgrace that too many murderers go acquit in this country, or receive punishment entirely disproportionate to the crime. It should be made more difficult for people to secure weapons. The methods and practice of English criminal procedure should be more nearly approximated here. The churches and the schools should more intensely seek to develop the gentler impulses of the human heart. The sacredness of life should be impressed upon all with unabated zeal and sincerity. Murder should be made an unsafe trade by swift trials and speedy punishment upon conviction.

Respect For Flag

WHEN the average American citizen toddles down the street, on business bent, he will not notice whether the American flag is displayed or not. If it is, it excites no curiosity, for he is familiar with its colors and design and so takes it for granted. Set that same American on a foreign shore, and he can see Old Glory 20 miles out at sea, and his heart will swell with patriotic pride, because there is the emblem of his country.

It is not lack of patriotism, or indifference to the flag, that accounts for the neglect apparent on the streets. Folks are not in the habit of paying the deference due to the banner of their nation. In war the salute is enthusiastically given; in peace it is forgotten. This is a cause for annoyance to some, and the habit has come in for considerable censure at different times. The American Legion has just adopted a "code" for flag observance, in line generally with the military code, but varied in some regards to meet civilian requirements. Chief of the provisions to be kept always in mind is that on no occasion should the flag be permitted to touch the ground, and that when it is worn or soiled, from exposure, it should be burned or disposed of in some suitable manner, but never washed or torn up. Nor should it be used as a table drape or part of a personal costume. Other regulations for the display of the banner are easily observed, and it is suggested that citizens provide themselves with copies of the code, to the end that they may know how properly to use the great emblem of the

Grable-Shafer

The bride's father, Rev. M. J. Grable read the service making Miss Esther Grable the wife of Lieut. Henry Lee Grable, Jr. at 6 p. m. Saturday, at the Grable residence, 227 Garfield ave.

The appearance of the groom attired in the uniform of the United States military service gave the occasion a semi-military air which was carried further when the bride cuts the wedding cake with her husband's sabre.

Mrs. Shafer wore a gown of white canton crepe and lace and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and forget-me-nots. The affair was marked by informality.

Mr. Shafer and his bride were unattended. They stood before an altar of rambling roses and palms during the ceremony. The home was beautifully decorated throughout with a profusion of rambling roses.

The dining room hostesses were the Misses Betty Campbell, Nellie Kelly and Doris Wilson. A wedding dinner was served immediately following the nuptial ceremony to guests numbering between 20 and 40, including the Grable and Shafer families and their close friends.

Among those coming from a distance to attend the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Young, Mr. and Mrs. A. ## PLANES TO LOCATE LAKES

Use Flying Machines in the Finding and Photographing of Alaskan Inland Waters.

Locating and photographing undiscovered lakes in the national forests of Alaska are the latest uses to which the airplane has been put, says American Forestry, quoting the United States forest service. We read:

It has long been known that there are many lakes on the headlands and islands traversed by the inside passage between Seattle and Skagway that do not appear on any map. During the New York-Nome flight made by army aviators, lakes were frequently sighted which could not be found on the latest and most authentic maps of the territory. Tales of unknown water bodies are constantly being brought in by trappers and prospectors. Less than a year ago a lake four and one-half miles long and one-half mile wide was discovered at the head of Shores bay. This lake has over 1,000 acres of surface area and is less than one and one-quarter miles from tidewater, yet because of the surrounding territory's rough topography has remained unknown and unnamed. Recognizing that many others of these "lost lakes" may be sources of valuable water power, the forest service has laid plans to map this no man's land of the North by means of aerial photographs. A few days' flight, it is said will be sufficient to cover the area with a degree of accuracy that would require many years and great expense to accomplish by ordinary methods. The work, which has been approved by the federal power commission, will be done by seaplane, flying from Ketchikan as a base.

Several manufacturers producing airplane motors in Great Britain will hereafter make engines for motorcars. Another British concern which has been making shells will now turn out shoe machinery.

SMALL BEGINNINGS

SHOW BIG RESULTS

Many great enterprises begin in a small way. Many a successful advertiser has begun by using classified advertisements in a modest way. These brought good results, which enabled the business to be developed, and eventually large advertisements were profitably used. Intelligent use of the little ads in The Salem News either by advertiser or reader will prove

What's Made Vast Radio Will In Use

Materials And
Upon When
Some of the reasons why radio should realize some of its possibilities have to be solved by those who are engaged in preparing programs, they would, I am sure, not only sympathize with them but would wonder how they preserve their sanity. No one before has ever had to entertain a million or so people every night; and consequently those who have undertaken this simple little task have had to stumble along as best they could learning as they go and profiting wherever possible by their mistakes. They are, however, exceedingly fortunate in having an audience that tells them frankly just what it thinks about their efforts; and with the hundreds of letters that reach them daily as a guide they have been able to work with some degree of certainty.

The first rule that the letters lay down is: Give the radio public infinite variety. If you were to open their mail some morning, the first letter would probably say: "I enjoyed your concert so much last night. That's right; give us more good music and do away with those execrable popular selections." Then the second letter would say: "For the love of Mike, cut out the uproar and give us good old American jazz." Letter number three would read as follows: "Professor Shimpkins' address on the 'Color of Cats' was the most interesting speech I ever listened to," and letter number four would state: "Why do you insult your audience with such stupid stuff as the talk on 'cats'?" I hung up my receiver in disgust.

Difficult to Please Everybody.
With testimony like this it is quite evident that it is very difficult to satisfy everybody all the time. The only thing to be done is to draw from the entire field of music, literature, science, politics, culture, hygiene and religion, and thus please everyone at least part of the time. Consequently, those who do not like jazz music must bear in mind that many will listen to nothing else; while those who do not like speeches must remember that a very large number of radio listeners are isolated or are invalids, and absolutely depend upon radio for their contact with the outside world.

The second point that the letters prove is, there must be constant improvement in broadcasting both technically and artistically. No station can maintain its programs on a dead level and retain the interest of its audience. The complaints soon begin to come in. Curiously enough, they are all to the effect that the programs are getting so poor. This is not the case. They are just as good as ever; but the taste of the audience has improved. It is for this reason that KDKA is experimenting so constantly in every direction. Its engineers are incessantly striving for better tone reproduction and for the elimination of unpleasant noises. Its program staff is incessantly working for better artistic effects and for entirely new features. They began with the phonograph; then introduced artists and speakers in person; then went outside of the studio for church services, important meetings, symphony concerts, operas, and sporting events; and recently established an orchestra so that incidental music could be rendered in the best possible manner. Thus, in accordance with the well-known formula, "Every day in every way we are getting better and better." But no one realizes more fully how much more must be done in order to continue to preserve the good opinion of the radio audience.

Must Eliminate Interference.
The third important fact that develops from the correspondence is, interference must be eliminated. Not only must the audience be able to hear this station clearly and distinctly whenever they wish to hear it, but they must also be at perfect liberty to eliminate its signals and receive equally clearly the program of some other station that may, for the moment, please them better. This is their most serious problem at present. The great increase in the number of stations has filled the ether with chaos and confusion, and if this is not remedied broadcasting will die out. The government, the radio engineers, and those broadcasting stations that are interested in radio for its own sake, and not for selfish reasons, are struggling with it valiantly. Though the situation may at times look hopeless, one should not forget that worse troubles than this have been smoothed out.

Broadcasting is only an infant. If it develops as rapidly within the next two years as it has in the past two (and there is every reason to believe that it will) interference will disappear; trivial programs will make way for those of real interest and importance and it will be possible to hear not only the large American stations clearly and distinctly, but stations in London, Paris and Rome as well.

Should Please All and Strengthen
At the annual dance a family of four Men's association was sewing, 1 of the association were, as I had not the wives of those present machine, by liner at another sewing by hand. Its great possibility here today as much it necessary to be famous. —Mrs. G. family establishment, Glens Falls, N. Y.

FIREMAN M'ILVANE

went into the tank to save the fellow human being, and never have come out alive. That does that, whose first duty is the safety of another, that is entirely outside of his duties as a fireman, is more than a medal.

As fire chief and superior officer of McIlvane I did all in my power to obtain the medal with the co-operation of the columns of The News, and I submitted evidence in the form of statements of witnesses, newspaper accounts of the incident and all other information which the commission asked for. All this information seemed to me to be entirely correct and to be no avail although it was plain that he was entitled to the recognition.

Because the old smoke mask proved unfit in the emergency it has been sent to the manufacturers for repairs and will be put on one of the fire-trucks as soon as it is returned. New canisters containing oxygen have already arrived. These canisters are good for only nine months and have to be renewed after that time.

DAMASCUS

Ralph Coppock returned Saturday from Toledo where he attended a convention of the Ohio Christian Endeavor society.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fader of Barberton called on Damascus friends Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barber and son, called upon Mrs. Barber's parents in Beloit Sunday.

Ice Cream for Dessert.

My most embarrassing moment came while I was a student at college. I was working my way through a waiting table at a sorority house. Occasionally we would have ice cream for dessert, and sometimes a portion or two would be left untouched. The other waiter and I, in our youthful insatiability whenever that delicacy was involved, were accustomed to hasten into the dining room as soon as the girls had left to look for such spoils of our trade. On one such occasion we hurried in, and found a splendid portion untouched. We began to divide it, and just then the dining room door opened and the girl who had been called away to the telephone returned.—Exchange.

The Vintage of a Joke.

One can just tell how long a man has been married by the way he gets that old stuff about hooking them up the back, says the El Dorado Times. If he has taken unto himself a wife during the last ten years, or during the reign of the present house, and the one-piece dress, he'll only register a blank look when the once popular gag is pulled, but if he joined the ranks of the Tri Hook'em Upsilon fifteen or more years ago when tight linings, choker collars, staves and crinoline were in vogue, then watch him chuckle reminiscently but without a pang of regret, however, for the bad old days.

Peat Bogs in Michigan.

Michigan has a large area of peat bogs. It is estimated that about 5,200,000 acres, or nearly one-seventh of the area of the state, is swamp land underlaid with peat. There is peat in Washtenaw, Jackson, Shiawassee, Lenawee, Ingham, Lapeer, Monroe, Allegan, Kalamazoo, Livingston and other counties. Experimental work has been done at Chelsea and Capac in connection with utilizing this for fuel and fertilizer.

Blind Persons Privileged.

Buggies And Wagons Made 40 Years Ago Still In Use

Frank Adams Reminiscences About Trials And Tribulations Of Buggy Manufacture In Lisbon When Competition Was Keen; Often Traded For Horses.

By HARRY STANLEY

Lisbon, July 2.—"Whoa, Boss!" A grizzled farmer with soft black hair, a faded blue shirt and a pair of overalls, sat on a bench and surveyed the scene.

He had come to a pause in front of one of Lisbon's landmarks and traditions—a little, shabby, litter-strewn shop at Beaver and Washington sts. where they still repair buggy wheels and tops and give them decorative coats of yellow and black.

"Want ye should fix her up a mite," he told one of the brothers in charge. "She won't last long, anyhow. Besides, the old woman kind of hankers after an automobile. I reckon this here buggy's seen mighty near its last trip."

So they unhitched Boss from her worn harness and wheeled it into the shop to be repaired.

"Don't see many of them around any more," commented a bystander.

"No, sir, ye don't," the farmer agreed. "I bought this buggy from Frank Adams 40-odd years ago. That was when Lisbon was one of the centers of buggy making. Folks come from miles around to order buggies special built to order—especially the young chaps. I mind."

Boss suddenly displayed a wandering mood and her owner was forced to trail after her. A workman who had been standing by nodded in agreement.

"See Adams about that," he advised. "You'll find him uptown in his real estate office. He can tell you when the buggy industry was all there was in Lisbon, mighty near."

Buggies? He knows 'em.

"Buggies!" repeated J. Frank Adams quizzically as, sitting at his flat-topped desk, he chewed a dead cigar. "Well, yes, I know something about 'em. I ought to. I put in 10 good years of my life putting a buggy plant on the map while the buggy industry as a whole was on the decline. Got a match?"

As the light flared and smoke began to issue, the man credited with being the leader among Columbiana county Republicans leaned back and began the recital of earlier Lisbon days which, as he says, he has seldom touched upon save to occasional intimates.

"You hear a lot of talk these days about super-salesmanship," he began. "But I want to tell you, young fellow, that it's one thing to sell an article for which there is a demand and quite another thing to find a market for something which is steadily fading out of the picture. When I took hold, the makers of handmade buggies were already fighting a losing battle against the increasing competition of machine made buggies, not to speak of the steady encroachments of the automobile, just then coming in. We had to fight."

Had To Whistle For Money

"Not only did we face merciless competition, but we had natural barriers to overcome. Our market hereabouts was limited and that drove us to find markets elsewhere. Railroads were not as easy of access; the roads were mere cowpaths—much worse than they have now; and many a time I have taken a string of buggies, hitched to one team, and driven through surrounding counties, stopping at every little town and many farmhouses in a desperate effort to make sales.

"Money, of course, was scarce and we had to take long-term paper. While we usually got our money in the end we sometimes had to whistle for it a long time. Meanwhile, we had to meet our own bills for material—wood, iron parts, leather and curled hair. Making our buggies by hand, we could only put out about a hundred a year and the average buggy cost from $125 to $175—some of them more. They weren't easy to sell—and keep sold."

In the early eighties, when the buggy and wagon industry in Lisbon was in its prime, there were three plants. One was owned by William Myers, who later failed and subsequently died in Lisbon. Another was run by George Adams, who also was forced out of business. His sons, George and Bart Adams moved to East Liverpool, where his widow still lives. The third plant was operated by John Q. Adams, father of J. F. Adams. Of the three, the Myers plant was most important. While the Adams shop was on a sound basis, the elder Adams had little spare capital. His credit he managed to keep intact, but it was not elastic.

$50 a Year and Board
Labor, of course, was cheap. Skilled mechanics capable of turning out complete buggies without the use of lathes or any modern machinery drew only $2 a day. The apprentice system was in vogue in those days and young men bound themselves to work three years at the trade for $50 a year and board. The making of buggies had begun in Lisbon during the Civil war, following the establishment of buggy plants in Cincinnati.

In the early seventies the first hint of competition by machine-made buggies appeared on the horizon, singularly from the direction of Cincinnati. The machine articles were sold for less than half the hand-made ones. While they did not have the workmanship could not last as long, were not as well constructed or finished, it was difficult to convince the average farmer that it was the part of wisdom to pay double the price for a hand-made spring wagon, surrey, phaeton or top buggy.

Under the pressure of ruthless competition, Lisbon's buggy plants waned in production. Two of them disappeared. The old Adams plant was facing bankruptcy when young Frank Adams, then 24 years old, took hold.

Adams Jumps Into Fight

"Mind," Adams explained, "I had been all through the business under my father. I knew it from every engle. At the time I stepped in a number of prominent residents were on my father's notes, as they had been on those of Myers. I didn't want him to fail and drag the rest down with him. So I put it up to my father that I would go in as manager of the plant and he agreed. From that time, while he did not actually retire, the bulk of responsibility was on my shoulders."

Adams jumped into the fight in earnest. He had many an anxious Saturday wondering how to scrape up money for the payroll. However, his mechanics were a loyal crew and backed him to the limit. Frequently, they helped him overtime on some special job or came out early to assist him rigging up a string of buggies with which he planned to "hit the trail."

The young manager acted as purchasing agent for all materials, did his own financing at the banks, usually on long terms and traveled incessantly. The roads were bad. Each spring he would take teams with buggies into the oil fields of Pennsylvania, back of Hookstown and through Harrison, Carroll and Jefferson counties.

To keep up his end on the argument of quality, he had to see to it personally that only the best ash, oak and hickory went into the frames and that high quality yellow poplar was used for the panels and sides. He gave each purchaser a written guarantee.

Lastly, he had to keep abreast of competition in style. New designs were coming out every year, just as today they emerge in the automobile field. Adams had to be his own designer, his own draughtsman; and many was the time he superintended the construction of the first buggy of a new design, telling the wood carver just how to do this or that, instructing the blacksmith how long to make certain pieces and where to curve them.

In short, he was one man in many guises, arrayed against scores in a grim industrial battle.

Traded For Horses

In the buggy industry at that time—as in automobiles today—there were specialists who built certain parts or who made nothing but bodies. The Adams plant built practically everything itself. But it kept Adams awake nights pondering the next move.

Ferrying over the Ohio river into Pennsylvania territory, reaching home days later and usually far into the night, making sorties here and there into adjoining counties, selling all the stock buggies he could and taking eagerly all orders for special buggies, young Adams carried on.

When he couldn't get money he took what he could. Often he traded buggies or wagons for cattle. Usually, however, his trades were for horses. He became as adept at judging a horse as a Gypsy itinerant. When he had disposed of his string of buggies he would return home and hold a sale to dispose of his accumulation of horses, cows and whatnot. The Adams pilgrimages with horses became famous through the county.

"At the end of ten years," Adams resumed, "I got out of the firm. That was in 1893. I had put the business on its feet and built up a competence for my father to retire on and I turned the business over to my brothers, George and William, who are still conducting it as a repair shop. The manufacture of buggies stopped just about the time I quit."

Becomes County Auditor

"I went into the county auditor's office."

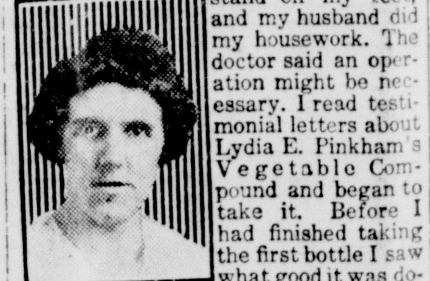

For six years Adams served as a deputy in the auditor's office. Then he was induced to run for the office himself—and was elected. The next six years he remained in office, at the end of which he undertook to sell to counties in Ohio a new tax-listing system just invented. Being of a mathematical turn of mind, he understood how superior the new system was to that then in use. He brought his knowledge to bear upon auditors and commissioners in Ohio's 68 counties to such effect that he sold it in all but one.

"That one," Adams smiled, "admitted it was a good system, but—he Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

Glens Falls, N. Y.—"For over two months I was so sick I was not able to stand on my feet, and my husband did my housework. The doctor said an operation might be necessary. I read testimonial letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began to take it. Before I had finished taking the first bottle I saw what good it was doing me. I am now well and strong, doing all my work for a family of four, all my washing and my sewing, which I think is remarkable, as I had not dared to run my sewing machine, but had done all my sewing by hand. I truly feel that were it not for your medicine I would not be here today as my case seemed very serious."—Mrs. GEORGE W. BURCHELL, Glens Falls, N. Y.

There was no recommendation to mercy, and she will be formally sentenced on July 9 to die in the electric chair. wanted a little financial persuasion. We couldn't do business."

Still Use Old Wagon

Some of the wagons and buggies Adams sold 35 and 40 years ago are still in the running, Adams says. Only a short time ago he ran across John McMillan, a Wayne township farmer, driving a wagon he had sold him 43 years ago. It was still in good condition. Occasionally he sees others which he designed and marketed in his career of sale and barter.

"Where are all the men who used to make buggies today? Adams was asked, during a pause.

"Dead—some of them" was the rejoinder. "But many of them are at work in automobile body plants. In fact, some of the present manufacturers of motor cars—like Durant and Dorr—were making buggies and buggy bodies in the early days."

Adams today is 64 years young, he would call it. He still conducts his business actively, but in politics he prefers to have it that he is acting purely in an advisory capacity, when ever called upon. He is weary of perpetual wandering. As for fighting, he had enough of that in days when buggies were just fading from the picture and had to be sold.

FREEDOM PERFECT MOTOR OIL—OUR LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN MOTOR OILS

"Change the oil in your crankcase every 1500 miles—add a quart of oil at a time—if you use Freedom Perfect Motor Oil," advises Percy L. Craig, President of the Freedom Oil Works Company.

"Yes, I know that motorists are warned never to add a quart of oil at a time and always to change oil every 500 or 750 miles," he continues "but our Freedom Perfect Motor Oil is an old fashioned Motor Oil made from 100 per cent. Pennsylvania Paraffin Base Crude and which retains its life long after the modern Asphalt Base Motor Oils have lost their lubricating qualities.

If it is necessary to add a quart of oil at a time in order to keep your gauge level up to the top, you can do so without danger, because the original oil still retains its superlative lubricating qualities. Although we do not recommend using Perfect Motor Oil for longer than 1500 miles, yet we have heard of motors that have been run for 3000 miles before draining the

The Power Plant that Pays for Itself

How long would you keep a hired man on your farm if he didn't pay for his hire with the work he accomplished? Do you ask yourself a like question when you buy your farm machinery?

Westinghouse has developed an electric Farm Light and Power Plant that pays for itself. Pays for itself by pumping water, grinding feed, churning, washing, and doing a hundred other chores around the farm besides furnishing good safe light for your work in and around the barn in the early winter mornings and evenings.

And the feature of the Westinghouse Farm Light and Power Unit is that it is so simple in design that it does not require special electrical or mechanical skill to keep it going. Anyone can operate it.

We can show you that electricity on the farm not only is a great comfort and convenience but is a source of power that pays its own way.

MEDAL GIVING IS OFFICIALLY OVER

ALL AWARDS OF HONORS BY U. S. FOR SERVICES IN WORLD WAR HAVE BEEN MADE.

THEY NUMBER NEARLY 10,000

Many Americans Have Received Foreign Decorations, but Hereafter Permission for Their Acceptance Must Be Obtained From Congress.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—Medal giving for service in the world war has been closed down on conferring of honors. A board of officers spent four years going over the citations for valor and for services generally, and now all the medals have been "pinned on."

Nearly ten thousand medals, crosses and stars have been conferred on American soldiers for individual acts of heroism or for general devotion to duty. It is possible that in the future some few cases which have been overlooked or which have been misunderstood will be given consideration, and that a few men who have been denied the right to wear honors which they have deserved will get them, but for the main part the medal and cross giving is over.

Thousands of Americans who served in the great war have been given foreign decorations. There seems to be a general public belief that most of these foreign medals and crosses were given to ranking officers of the American army and to high officials of this government who did war work in civilian capacity. The belief is not well founded; the great majority of foreign decorations were given to junior officers of the armed service and to "non-coms" and enlisted men.

French Honored Many Soldiers.

The French were particularly active in their endeavors to reward with honors the acts of soldiers who were serving in subordinate capacities. The French always acted quickly. There are cases in which the French pinned medals for heroism on the breasts of American soldiers within a few hours after the act was performed which won the decoration. The United States government has been much more deliberate, and in many cases years passed before a heroic act, already recognized by the foreigner, was given recognition by the government of the man who performed the deed.

Today men in the service of the United States must receive special permission of their government before they can receive any foreign decoration. In wartime the regulation was relaxed.

Years ago it took the shah of Persia two years to get permission to give a snuffbox to Richmond Pearson, who at that time was American minister at Teheran. The khedive of Egypt in an elder day petitioned for two years before he was able to secure permission to bestow on an American, Ethelbert Watts, the decoration of the Order of the Osmank.

Congress Often Hesitant.

When Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee and some other American army officers with him went to France about twenty years ago to witness the French army maneuvers the French government desired to give the decoration of the Order of the Legion of Honor to the general, and minor decorations to the other American officers. The desire to honor Chaffee was based on his fine military record as an officer of the American army, but in part unquestionably because the general had written some things about the general reputation of the French maneuvers and of the French military system generally.

It is possible if France had not been a republic the congress of the United States would have declined to grant the necessary permission to the American officers to receive the decorations. Permission finally was given.

King Edward VII of England tried five times before he finally was successful to secure permission from congress to give a silver inkstand to an American who had been this country's consul at Kingston, Jamaica. At that time King Edward also wanted to present a silver writing-set to Arthur M. Beaupre and several coronation medals, a sword or two and several silver watches to various Americans who at one time or another had served their country in Jamaica or who had been visitors at the island in their capacity of army and navy officials. Edward stuck to his job and finally congress allowed the Americans to take the expressions of his good will.

Over in the State department today there is a case full of presents of all sorts which were sent to this country as gifts to American citizens in government service. Permission to receive these exhibited gifts never was given, and so it is that the United States has in its possession for exhibition purposes some really valuable things, and a great many things of trifling value, which it has declined to allow its citizens to accept.

Better Idea.

"Why are you taking down the pictures?"

"Our neighbor wants to borrow them for her party."

"She already has most of our furniture. Tell her to bring that back and just give the party in our flat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves a low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality.

It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus.

That's why S.S.S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

The Importance of Good Telephone Habits

If there is any one thing that reflects the spirit of an organization more than another, it is the service one gets over the telephone.

Your telephone habits determine the benefits you receive from the service to a greater extent than perhaps you realize.

When you crowd your words; when you let your voice fade toward the end of a sentence; when you hold the instrument too far from your lips; when you call a person and then make him wait until you are ready to talk—you do not get the results you secure by the practice of good telephone habits. You make a less favorable impression; you lose good will; and sometimes actual business.

Being a cooperative product, telephone service is at its best only when every person who has anything to do with making and using a connection does that part properly.

Every telephone call should be regarded in the same light that one regards a caller at the office or home in person.

The proper use of the telephone by everyone will make the service of greater value to all.

LEETONIA LEGION'S CELEBRATION ENDS

Streets Crowded Closing Day; Automobile Won By Harry Ready.

Leetonia, July 2.—The three-day celebration staged in Leetonia by the American Legion post and the Merchants' Business Association closed Saturday evening. The streets were crowded with automobiles and hundreds of people from out of town who joined the citizens of Leetonia in enjoying the affair. An automobile was given away, being won by Harry Ready of Leetonia.

Eighteen Girl Scouts of Leetonia, with their captain, Miss Myrna Wilderson, and lieutenant, Miss Martha Harold, went on a long hike Saturday. At the close of the afternoon the officers entertained the girls at a picnic supper.

GIRLS! LEMONS BEAUTIFY AND WHITEN SKIN

Mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin softener and complexion beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon cream into the face, neck, arms and hands, then shortly note the youthful beauty, softness and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this harmless lemon cream to bring that velvety, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

SOUNDED FAMILIAR TO HER

Letter of Old Sweetheart Had Recollections That Created Embarrassing Situation.

It was while attending college that I met a young man who was a veritable Hercules. Then, too, he was a westerner and affected a broad southerner in which he was especially noticeable. Indeed, many fair young coeds wore their handsomest smiles when he passed, which I had occasion to notice on my frequent walks with him. Naturally I felt singularly blessed in receiving his undivided attention and was soon hopelessly in love. I had reason to feel my affections were returned.

One week and I went to visit a former classmate who was teaching in a nearby town. While there I received a letter from my admirer. It was a thriller and I wanted to share it with my friend, so I read parts of it. Suddenly I noticed she was laughing. I asked what she thought so amusing.

"I thought you were reading one of my old sweetheart's letters, for it sounds just like 'Dan.'"

"Dan who?" I asked.

"Why, Dan West. There aren't two of him."

Will Try Again To Make Four-Day Flight.

Capt. Howell H. Smith of the American air forestry patrol with Lieut. John B. Richter will seek again, at San Diego, Calif., to make an uninterrupted flight of four days in an airplane, replenishing their fuel and oil supply in the air from another airplane. ## HAD FOUR SILVER TEASPOONS

Also Good Reason Why John Wesley Would Not Add to His Collection of "Plate."

John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was a pattern of diligence, of self-denial and generosity. When he was past seventy years of age, and his Methodism had become triumphant through the kingdom of Great Britain, an order passed the house of lords that the commissioners of excise send out letters to all persons suspected of possessing plate, and to those who had not regularly paid duty on the same. Wesley received such a letter. This was his reply:

"Sir—I have two silver teaspoons in London, and two in Bristol. This is all the plate I have at present, and I shall not buy any more while so many around me want bread."

One is reminded of the tenderheartedness of a like-minded man, Charles Kingsley, who, when the famous famine was raging in India, pushed his plate aside as headlines of a newspaper fell under his eye, and exclaimed: "Take it away! Take it away! I cannot eat while my brothers are dying by thousands of hunger."

MITE BOX OPENING AT FRIENDS CHURCH

A mite box opening with the ceremonies in charge of Mrs. Edna Whinnery was a feature of the Bible school session Sunday morning at the First Friends church. The mite box offering including a free will offering taken at this session, amounted to over $55.

This money will go toward the support of a Bible woman in Nanking, China. The Missionary circle of the church supports this woman. Rev. and Mrs. M. M. Coffin sang a duet.

At the evening service the pastor, Rev. M. M. Coffin, brought a stirring message on "My Country." In this the speaker emphasized the need of Christian statesmen. It also had to do with present day amusements.

The mid week prayer service will be at 7:30 Wednesday evening at the church.

A Buick Closed Car

Built for Summer Driving

The Buick Six Cylinder Touring Sedan is particularly popular because it combines perfectly the many advantages of the open touring model with the luxury and convenience of a fine closed car.

The wide windows provide touring car airiness; yet in case of a summer shower or dust storm, a turn of the hand instantly protects the occupants without obstructing their vision.

Buick traditional performance, power, dependability and riding comfort are worthily typified in this Touring Sedan.
